Time Flies When You're Having Fun!

"The biggest problem in WHS is the heating system. When the school gets too hot, students and teachers should be allowed to remove their shoes. A teacher should be able to say, "Okay, we will have a shoeless class today." As a bonus, every Friday should be a mandatory no-hair day for the faculty. Teachers with seniority are allowed to wear mohawks.

As 2:15 approached, beads of sweat begin to accumulate on the furrowed brows of drained and exhausted students and teachers alike as all eyes focus expectantly on the clock. Hark! Is that the bell? Yes, the revered moment arrives. Hordes of students swarm towards the mecca of after-school snacks we fondly call The School Store. Replenished and refreshed high schoolers head home with another day behind them.

GREEN YEARS DEDICATION

Mr. Thomas DelSignore honored by Class of 1994

Mr. Thomas DelSignore
Art Director

For the members of the graduating class of 1994, the one thing that we all crave and respect, perhaps more now than ever, is freedom. In Westwood High over the last four years, our freedom to create, our freedom to express ourselves, has sometimes been stifled. That is why many of us have cherished the opportunity to be students of this individual, this class's Green Years dedication recipient.

Over the course of a staggering thirty-seven year career in the Art Department here at Westwood High, this man's own inimitable style has always endured and has never conformed. Although he will be taking off the smock after the completion of this, his farewell year, his presence will forever haunt the corridor outside of Room 132 — his infamous stomping grounds.

Creative freedom hangs like a cloud in that room, a place which fosters his principle that each student has artistic potential within, and it is simply up to the individual to recognize and exploit it. As peerless class artist Pete Cafarella reflects: "He doesn't tell you what to draw or how to think.... He believes that while technique can be taught, expression must come from inside." At WHS, the art student's learning environment is very relaxed, very open, a virtual even flow of the pupil's questions and his answers. There have been few complaints from either side.

Even the most ignorant WHS art student could learn a thing or two from him, who rarely fails to get his point across and frequently finds young men and women in his class who have the sole intention of merely filling their dreaded art requirement (namely these writers). But that's no problem for our man of honor, since he has the uncanny ability to seek out these individuals and plaster their faces with various colored acrylics. To be successful in baseball, you have to "be the ball." To be successful in his art class, you must be the canvas—whether you like it or not.

Perhaps his value to our class does not wholly reside in his talents as an art mentor, for he is not only the institutions's resident art sage, but also a fine stand-up comedian as well.

When passing from class to class in the art corridor, the anonymous WHS learner could be: a) the recipient of a warm greeting; b) the victim of a somewhat kind-hearted verbal lashing; or c) chased by a frantic white-haired man yielding either a brush or, even worse, a refined carving instrument.

But in seriousness, he is and has been one of this school's finest educators and an even better role model for the students of the Class of 1994. His professionalism is unrivaled, his ability as yet unmatched, and his wry sense of humor much appreciated. He will forever hold a place in all of our palettes, and in our hearts as well.

Mr. DelSignore, the Class of 1994 is proud to name you as this year's recipient of the Green Years dedication!

CENTRAL ADMINISTRATION

Dr. Robert J. Monson
Superintendent

Mr. Leo Crowe
Assistant Superintendent

Directing the school system throughout the year is the responsibility of the superintendents and the School Committee. Meetings, open to the public, are held every other week either at the school administration building or at the various schools. Garrett Domina, student liaison, and Mr. Donald Beurman, Westwood Teachers' Association liaison, attended all meetings and represented the interests and concerns of WHS students and of the staff. The School Committee this year was capably chaired by Mrs. Karen Coffey.

Mr. Donald Beurman
Westwood Teachers' Association Liaison

Garrett Domina
Student Liaison

As students, we are fortunate that our state allows one of us to serve as a liaison to the School Committee. Although the bi-weekly meetings were not always the action-packed, virtual-reality type thrills our generation has grown to love, I still managed to find most of them quite interesting and was happy to see that our voice was (usually) heard.

—Garrett Domina

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION

The Class of 1994 has distinguished itself in many ways during its four years in Westwood High School. Academic honors have been bestowed on many members of the class and scholarships totalling in the hundreds of thousands of dollars have been conferred. In athletics, the class was instrumental in bringing state championships, league championships and individual top performances to the school. The class' social events were uniformly successful throughout and their senior week was exceptionally pleasant.

Perhaps the most common expressions heard relative to the Class of 1994 referred to their being "good people who enjoyed each other" and were fun to work with and teach. This accolade may well be the most important of all, indicating as it does the ability of the class members to strive toward a common goal and help meet the needs of others.

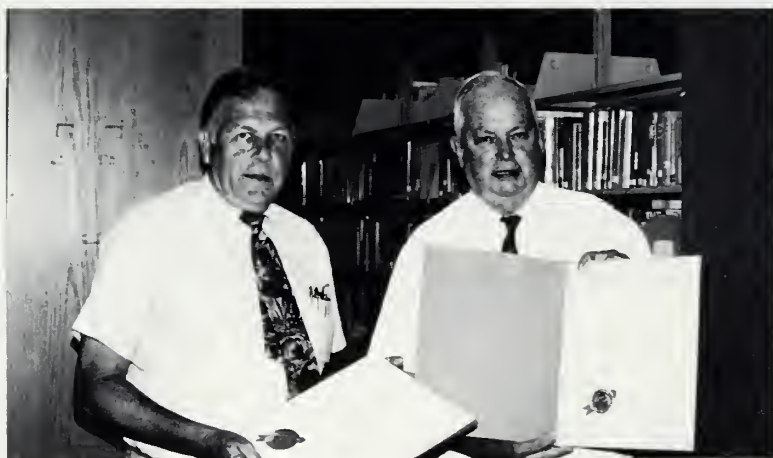

It is my sincere wish that this good fortune will follow the members of the class in their future activities, both in school and later life. You have contributed much to Westwood High School and we all wish you the greatest possible success.

Principals Of The Year

From the time you arrived just four short years ago, it was apparent that you were a talented class—ready to seize upon the many opportunities available at Westwood High School. Challenges in the classroom and the pursuit of excellence in all areas became the mission of the entire class. You soon excelled in the athletic arena, the performing arts, and in a large number of extra-curricular activities. You gave freely of your time and talents—you got involved, and displayed a genuine concern for your classmates and community.

On a personal note, I sincerely appreciate all the support received from the Class of '94 and the friendships built with so many wonderful and gifted individuals.

You are now members of our highly respected alumni! Keep your "Westwood Spirit," stay in contact with each other, and maintain your ties with this administration and faculty. Best wishes and happiness wherever you go.

To college you go, with so much to do,
The counselors are there just to help you.

Mrs. Levangie is there to guide you with care,
With hopes that you will have a happy school year.
Mrs. Armstrong's the one to meet your demands,
She's always around, with peer counselors on hand.

She'll give you assistance even when you are tardy,
(If you need a free pass go see Mrs. Hardy.)
You want a good recommendation go see
Mr. Hughes,
Soon from a college you will hear good news.

The METCO director is quite a show,
She's funny, she's sweet, it's Mrs. Goodloe.
When everyone is busy she's the one you will need,
Mrs. Bornstein will do you a good deed.

If you're having trouble she'll be on her way,
Dr. Kerrissey's the one who will save your day.
Aren't you glad we have this dynamic crew?
Without them you surely wouldn't know what to do.

Front Office

Stepping foot into this illustrious building, the first area one is directed to is the CENTRAL OFFICE where the heart and soul of Westwood High is run by three powerhouses, our three secretaries. Here, a student can expect to be greeted with smiles and a cheery "Hello!" Their confident manner and pleasant dispositions entice anyone to step into their abode.

But don't misjudge these secretaries.

They are not just smiles and pleasant faces. These women are strong, efficient workers. Mrs. Hall is always seen in her office typing away and working hard, but she is never too tired to greet anyone walking her way. Mrs. Macdonald's skills in handling all those administrative affairs cannot be matched by anyone else. Also, keeping track of 450 students is not an easy task! Mrs. Kallenberg, what else can I say except, "Where would

Mr. Flahive be without you?!"

We, the class of 1994, would like to thank each and every one of you for all that you've done for us, for this school, and for this community. We will miss those smiles and those pleasant faces you always offer, no matter how busy or tired you are. Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Kallenberg, and Mrs. Macdonald - THANKS SO MUCH!

"You just haven't experienced an English class until you experience Milan."

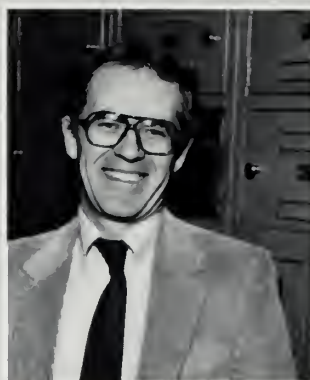

—Kurt Tondorf

Westwood High School's English Department, headed by Dr. Terrence Earls, consists of a group of dedicated and talented individuals. These teachers, burning to share their passionate love of literature and language, succeed in helping students better understand themselves and the world around them.

These zealous revolutionaries we call teachers are determined to extract creativity from students through classes such as Creative Writing, Humanities, AP English, and Youth in the Twentieth Century. Along with these thought-provoking courses, Oral English, Reading, vocabulary tests, grammar, lots of writing—all are a way of life in the English Department and must be passed if a student wishes to don cap and gown.

Westwood's English Department expects much from its students, and in forcing us to push ourselves, has taught us well. We extend our sincere thanks for the knowledge and skills you have given us, which are bound to serve us well in years to come.

Social Studies

The Social Studies Department of Westwood High School serves as the guardian of humanity's precious past. The outstanding faculty allows its students to examine the failures of the past in the hope of avoiding future repetitions. The leader of this mighty force - Mr. Thomas J. Brown - stands as a beacon of hope for the unenlightened. Mr. Brown is ably assisted by a number of learned scholars, including recent additions Mr. Dillon and Mr. Doré, who teach the continuing saga of Europe's progress from ancient times to recent upheavals. The curriculum offers a broad spectrum of mind-expanding courses for the WHS student in such diverse subjects as World Cultures and Comparative Government. The key feature of the department is the junior year United States history course, which provides a solid background on our nation's rise to prominence amidst a series of divisive issues. These faculty members have helped us see the past and have prepared us for the future. Look upon their faces and be proud.

Recent studies indicate that math competency is missing among America's youth. Westwood High, however, has no such problem. Under the watchful eye of Department Chairman James Pender, WHS students learn the skills that others may sorely lack. From geometry to calculus, the Math Department challenges its students to think analytically and logically. In an age of advancing technology, our math friends are on the cutting edge. Graphing calculators and relevant applications form an important part of the curriculum. Mr. Pender is not a one-man gang in preparing for the new century as he receives support and assistance from a talented group of individuals with a knack for numbers. This fine faculty helps to instill in WHS students an affection for math that is seldom seen. While scanning these faces, consider the impact math has on all our lives and what a valuable contribution this department has made. Hope you were listening to them!

Science

"No! Don't throw the eggs there!" - Mr. Babiera's Physics

"Mr. Burke, is tongue rolling genetic?"

"Rellava, a toll? You've got to be kidding!"

In what other department can one attend classes like this? None other than SCIENCE! Led by Dr. Griffin, the Science Department at Westwood High produces some extraordinary results. In addition to lectures and labs, the teachers in the Science Department have made science come to life. Who can ever forget the dissections in Biology, the roller blading in Physics, and the explosion of chemicals in Chemistry?

These demonstrations have shown us how fascinating science can be, but the teachers of the Science Department have also brought science into our everyday lives. They have taught us that science is not merely a subject in school, it is a part of life.

We, the Class of 1994, would like to thank each and every one of you for all that you've done. You have broadened our interests and who knows, maybe someday one of us will be teaching science, combining chemicals in a lab, or performing heart surgery. This year's Senior Class thanks you for all that you've taught us, and most importantly, all the support you've given us.

Science teachers do know how to have fun—on occasion.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING

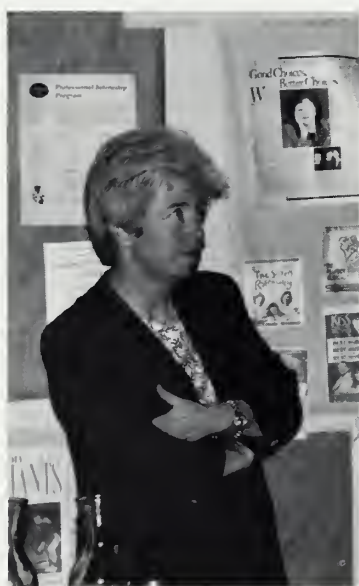

The most tempting part of school is far and away the Science Department. Fire blankets, safety showers, dangerous chemicals—with so much opportunity, it's no wonder that rooms catch on fire, teachers spend the night at the school huddled in fire blankets, and besides we learn to make poisonous candy canes.

—Courtney Patterson

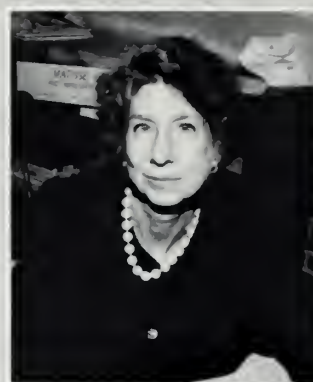

Foreign Languages

The Foreign Language Department is one through which almost every Westwood student passes. The language of love, French, can be experienced here with the help of Monsieur Ducheneau, Madame Rice, and Madame Chereski; the suave sounds of Spanish are found in the classrooms administered by Señora Perry, Señora Lannon and Señor Nocito; and the classic calls of the Latin tongue are controlled by Magistra Tieri. The annual international Foods Festival, hosted by the department under the guidance of Ms. Hollis Perry, was once again a school sensation as hundreds of hungry students were drawn to the fantastic array of fine foods representing more than a dozen cultures. In a world of increasing cultural diversity, the foreign language specialists of Westwood High School have been more than willing to fill the educational needs of the high school student.

Special Services

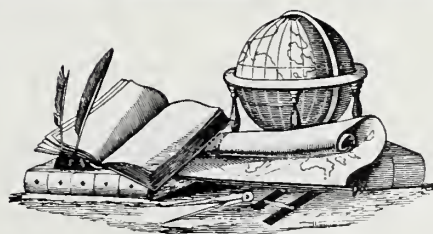

Getting to know one's own learning style and the best way to study are some of the important things that students with special needs learn at Westwood High School, especially with the help of the Special Services Department. WHS prides itself on an innovative and almost fully integrated program in which students with special needs are placed in courses of all levels. Regular and Special Education teachers team up in many classes to address the needs of students. The Special Services Department also addresses the psychological and physical needs of students, completing the care of the student as a whole.

Once again, not only have the Business and Industrial Technology Departments successfully prepared students for college and careers, but they have also provided students with the raw skills necessary in today's grueling work world . . . like "tYPpigN." (Not to mention accounting, business law, economics, drafting, graphic art, etc.)

Championed by Chairperson Rettman, Mrs. Furber, and Mrs. Dhosi, the Business and Industrial Technology Departments pride themselves on their fine reputation and skill in giving to its students the necessities of life in this crazy business-oriented wind tunnel we call "the world."

Physical Education

An ankle to be taped? New uniforms to be ordered? Or do you just want to know how to lose that extra flab on your tush? All these and more are in the realm of physical education.

Westwood High—sports mecca that it is—places a high demand on its physical education staff. But Athletic Director Dr. Joseph Gearon keeps the department running like a finely-oiled machine. There is no one among us who has not witnessed first hand what this dedicated bunch can do . . . from Jeff's advice on how to help your aching shoulder to Dr. Gearon's wisdom in hiring coaches.

Members of the Class of '94 have for two years been denied the joys of that sweaty frolic known as "gym class" but that does not mean that we are not forever indebted for all the health-oriented knowledge and power imparted to us by physical education gurus Susan Peters and Paul Tucelli. Visual And Performing Arts

Wise Men say that the ability to create art is what truly separates man from lesser beings—that, and opposable thumbs. However, while any common orangutan can create the “thumbs up” signal, he is feign to boast such achievements as Boston Globe Scholastic Art Award winning pieces, a myriad of talented musical groups, or delightfully entertaining plays and musicals (although he can work wonders with a ball of twine). Rather, these projects are some of the many breathtaking achievements of the Westwood High School Visual and Performing Arts Departments.

Nobly headed by Mr. Thomas DelSignore and Mr. James Giurleo, these departments valiantly battle to keep artistry alive in this Age of Reason, infusing in students a passion and penchant for art echoed in earlier centuries in the young Beethoven, Shakespeare and DaVinci. Mrs. Judith DesPres toils at the kilns, teaching technique and molding style so that a new Michelangelo might emerge; meanwhile, Mrs. Karen Hall brings the stage and all its wonders to her students, that Broadway will someday be forever changed by her work here.

The aspiring artists, sculptors, musicians and actors of Westwood High thank this dedicated faculty for their guidance and support in aiding arts students on their endless quest to achieve their full artistic potential.

Mrs. Mary Bishop

Media Center

Westwood High School has been blessed with a wonderful media center complete with many and varied media resources. Mrs. Mary Bishop, who oversees the lower media center, runs a tight ship yet is always ready to help a student research a project or find an elusive book. Upstairs, Mr. Eugene Swezey, who oversees the audio-visual aspect of WHS media, is always on hand to assist a teacher in operating a VCR, changing a burnt-out projector light-bulb, or lending a needy student some markers. (If you’re lucky, he may even laminate “it” for you!)

These fine individuals add a whole new dimension to the concept of learning.

Senior Silhouettes

A line of fading silhouettes lean against the wall.
The shadows seem dark, yet look so distinct.
From where I stand I can see the hands slowly link.
I watch as the silhouettes stand motionless and tall.

The silhouettes move slowly, hands tightly clasped.
Their feet in motion with a common desire,
to light each flame of a neverending fire.
Yet, I watch their minds circle in ringlets of the past.

As the silhouettes walk on, their shadows are slowly fading.
The shadows turn to dust, the dust to wind and rain.
And forever there will be memories to reclaim.
So I will keep watching and watching and waiting.

Pete "Speedy" Cafarella

Once I had this really big mosquito bite on my forehead and I scratched it until it bled. I had to wipe off the blood, but a nice woman whom I wanted to impress was standing near the tissue box. I pretended the blood wasn't there and I said "Hello" to her. She offered me a Sprite and I began to drink it. Suddenly, because of my neglect, blood ran down my nose and into my beverage. The woman thought I was shot and ran for help. I lost the woman and my dignity, and my Sprite was pink. Four soft tacos. Bye.

St. Dilbert was walking one day when up staggered a Bozo asking his opinion about the king, who had been caught with his hand in the exchequer, ought to abdicate, be deposed, have his hand cut off, or be given a medal. Dilbert said, "You Bozos slay me. You pick a king who best represents the sum of your own lameness to rule you, & then complain because he has a big red nose." While pondering his reply the Bozo smelled smoke & realized that Dilbert had again placed a lighted match between his toes. -R. Hunter

I Thank Ms. Toska, Mrs. Kelsch, and Milan for your devotion, sincerity, and inspiration; ICEP for your eternal love; Becket for your values; Mom and Dad for your guidance and unbridled love; Jeff for being more than a brother; and finally Ben, Chris, Eileen, Kate, and Lindsay for your love, support, creativity, and encouragement to love who I am and who we have become.

We dance. What else is there to do?

Andy

Just because you're paranoid, doesn't mean they're not after you. When I was an alien, cultures weren't opinions. I am so happy because today I found my friends, they're in my head. There is nothing I could say that I haven't thought before. I'm buried up to my neck in contradictionary flies. I'm not like them, but I can pretend. I am my own parasite, I don't need a host to live. Teenage angst has paid off well. I'm a negative creep. I'm a negative creep.

PRINCIPAL OF THE YEAR

Phillip F. Flaherty Receives Dr. Bertram H. Holland Award

Phillip F. Flaherty, Principal of Westwood High School, is the 1994 recipient of the Bertram H. Holland Principal of the Year Award.

Born in Boston, Mr. Flaherty graduated from Boston Latin School and Boston College. After serving in the U.S. Army during the Korean War, he returned and received his Master's degree from Boston State College.

In April, 1954, Mr. Flaherty signed a teaching contract with the Westwood Public School System, where he has been employed since, as a junior high school teacher, high school teacher, assistant principal, and principal. In June of this year he will have completed his fortieth year with the Westwood School System.

In the MSSAA, Mr. Flaherty has served as a member and as Chairman of the Professional Services Committee, as a member and as Chairman of the Academic Decathlon Committee, and as a member of the Liaison Committee. He was also President of the Association in 1989-90. During his presidency, he traveled widely throughout the state visiting local neighborhood groups. He also made several appearances at state house hearings and ceremonies, presenting Association viewpoints and positions.

In the MIAA, Mr. Flaherty has served as a member, Vice-Chairman, and currently Chairman of the Cross Country and Track Committee, and has been a member and current Chairman of the District "C" Athletic Committee for the past several years. He also serves as Track and Field Representative to the New England Council of Secondary School Principals' Associations.

Congratulations, Mr. Flaherty, from the entire Westwood High community!

Remarks By Mr. Flaherty At Presentation Ceremonies . . .

One or two comments I think are in order. First of all, I am particularly pleased to receive an award named for Dr. Bertram H. Holland. Westwood High School has had only three principals since World War II. As a matter of fact, seven human beings have made up the entire administrative corps since that time. The principal that hired me forty years ago was a man by the name of Isaiah Chase, who passed away only last year. He was a very close friend of Dr. Holland's. It would have given him enormous pleasure to know that someone from his system has received this award.

The other thing I would like to say is that, if I can be forgiven from the vantage point of forty years in this business, this day represents for me one of the intangible rewards of a life that 72 has been in most respects very enjoyable, and which I have always felt to be constructive. I meet people who say, how can you stand being in a high school with those kids all day? These kids are very nice people, as many of you know. Unfortunately, a few of them get bad press and all the others wear the paint. I have always wanted to stay with the kids. I have never wanted a job in education away from them.

I would also like you to know that I am deeply aware that this type of ceremony, as the commissioner indicated, is also a symbolic occasion. I would, therefore, like to ask all of you who are going to the mill every morning, the people who make public education work, to share with me the pleasure that I have in accepting this award and to allow me to accept it also in your name. Thank you.

Halloween

The first event of the year in which our school spirit was really shown was Halloween! Students, faculty and staff arrived to school arrayed in a variety of costumes - or were they? - and the fun began. Who could concentrate in class when a neighbor might have been a dragon or a fireman? Or even if one's teacher was a witch? Each class, in adding to the festivities, decorated a wing in the building - naturally the Class of 1994 was declared the winner of having the best corridor! That night the fun really began at the Halloween Dance, where costumers and "normal" people danced, socialized, ate and generally had a good time.

Fall festivities picked up momentum with the arrival of the first pep rally and election of the Homecoming Court. MC Rebecca Tremble, with the assistance of Amy Howland, Ted Duffy, and Joe Jowdy, introduced captains of the fall sports. The Homecoming Court, announced at the end of the pep rally, made its formal appearance the following day at the Homecoming Game.

Green Pride

Everyone participated during Green Pride Week. Students and faculty showed their "pride" by participating in all kinds of "unusual" days, such as Pajama Day, Hippy Day and Clash Day. Naturally, the Class of 1994 showed the most pride and enthusiasm. After all, after four years of practice, we were experts at this.

Winter Semi- Formal

The Winter Semi-Formal was again held in December, under the sponsorship of the Senior Class. Students from all grades attended, had an enchanting holiday-time, and danced the evening away to the sound of popular dance music and, on occasion, to slow romantic numbers. The atmosphere was enhanced by the holiday finery of all and by the winter wonderland decorations. Thank you, Senior Class, for a magical evening.

Karaoke And Mr. WHS

Karaoke! Karaoke, with a Hawaiian theme and sponsored by Student Council, took place on a blustery March evening - a relief after the long, cold winter. Students signed up as singles or groups and performed to their hearts' content. Great talent at WHS! Culminating the evening was a dance, where students expended their energies to great DJ music.

As part of Spring Fling Week, sponsored by Student Council, the Mr. WHS competition was held on an April Friday evening. This was the culminating event after a week of Color Wars, volleyball tournaments, and a faculty and student basketball competition. Christopher Queally was crowned Mr. WHS 1994. Congratulations, Chris. Other participants included Jim Fitzgerald, Peter Cafarella and Chris Daniels.

Legislative Council

In its second year of existence, our Legislative Council was able to get in gear and accomplish much of what it was created to do. As a board made up of members of all the community, it is an important branch of our government in which proposals are presented and policies are created. Such topics tackled this year included the WHS Cheating Policy and the attendance policy for assemblies. We also sponsored two community meetings, regarding the Social Awareness Week issues in December and the cheating policy in the spring. As the Council continues to grow and realize its potential, we wish it well for its future accomplishments.

Judicial Council

The Judicial Council has been in existence for the past two years. The board was formed as the judiciary branch of the school's governance structure. We oversee discrepancies between either students or students versus faculty administration. During the past year we had a few cases brought before the board that ranged from issues dealing with conduct to that of school policy. We try our best to be fair to everyone and see that justice is served. But not always is everyone pleased with our decision. If anyone is interested in seeing justice served fairly, wants to be on a board that maintains stability and a productive environment for all, and can keep an oath of confidentiality then the Judicial Council is the board to be on. We had a great year and we wish next year's board the best of luck.

Executive Branch

The Executive Branch of Westwood High School consists of the Principal and the Assistant Principal who exercise the powers to assume the responsibilities, including disciplinary actions, normally associate with their respective positions and outlined in their respective job descriptions. The Principal is considered to be the Chief Executive, and implements the policies and rules of the School Committee, the Central Administration, the Legislative Council, and the decisions of the Judicial Council. The Chief Executive also has the power to amend any decision or policy that he deems to be unreasonable or inconsistent with the Constitution's policies.

Elections And Nominations Committee

The Elections and Nominations Committee is in charge of organizing and holding elections and nominations for sophomores and juniors in the spring, and for freshmen in the fall.

Each year the committee reviews the elections process and makes any changes or improvements deemed necessary. The committee writes up questions for candidates to answer anonymously, collects nomination sheets, and puts together the ballot. The committee also sets up and works the polls on election day as well as tallying the votes. The committee is instrumental in ensuring fair elections with equal opportunity given to all.

School Climate Committee

The School Climate Committee's mission is to address issues which concern the school community. Under the direction of Ms. Susan Peters, this committee met weekly in order to discuss ideas as to how to improve the climate at WHS. This year the committee chose to focus on the celebration of cultural diversity yet understanding and appreciating the uniqueness of individuals and various ethnic groups. The committee prepared a map, which was on display in the art corridor, that showed the diversity of the school community.

Mr. Thomas Brown

Jill Santopietro

Arbitration Council

The Arbitration Council, formed last year, was again a large and influential Westwood High School organization. Led by co-moderators, Mr. Thomas Brown and Jill Santopietro, the council was called by the administration on a number of occasions to resolve potentially volatile disputes. Meetings held every week prepared the students and taught them how to utilize learned and acquired negotiation skills for quick and fair agreements. Surprisingly to many member, students and faculty, these skills proved successful in a number of arbitrations. The Arbitration Council has been, without a doubt, a great addition to our governance system and is certainly teaching its members negotiations skills they will use in and outside of their high school years.

Green Years 1994

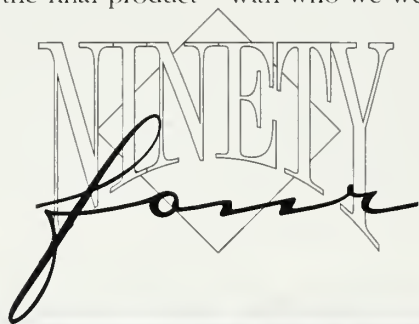

Our 1994 Green years stands as a testament to our four years at Westwood High School. Depicting the various activities our class has participated in, from the fall of 1990, to the formal graduation photos, the yearbook strove to best represent these years of change. The 1994 Green Years staff debated whether or not to name the book, but finally decided against it, as we felt the phrase we already had, "Green Years," accurately reflected this period of youth and energy we were attempting to illustrate.

Producing the yearbook was a more arduous task than any of us had expected. From long afternoons after the 2:15 bell had rung, choosing pictures, drawing layouts, and writing copy, to the occasional yearbook session at our homes, the staff worked with the inspiration of the final product never far from mind, and as time passed, we began to see our memories emerge as pictures, laid out on the completed pages.

The 1994 Green Years staff, and indeed the rest of the school remain in a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Frances Petrakos for her constant dedication, devotion, and sacrifice to the time-demanding yearbook. The hours Mrs. Petrakos logged throughout the year and into the summer are both countless, and invaluable, as without her the book never would have come together. We must also thank Mr. Flahive for often lending a helping hand.

The completed yearbook has frozen us in time the way we were in 1994, and no matter where we go or who we become, "Green Years," will never allow us to lose touch with who we were.

National Honor Society

"National Honor society fever--catch it." With a firm motto in place for the 1993-94 NHS campaign, officers Kurt Tondorf, Sushma Komakula, Kerry Vogelgesang and Liz Sullivan led one of the largest chapters in Westwood High history into the community service saga. All members participated in either the Mass. Hospital School service program or the high school's own Extended Day child care center, through which each student logged close to thirty hours of mandatory service to the community. Thanks to the annual dinner banquet at the onset of the year, these otherwise strenuous activities were made easier, seeing as we were well-fed and ready to go. We also raised a lot of money, thanks to our natural talent for washing cars. The year ended with a wonderful ceremony honoring retiring faculty members Mr. Eugene Tinory and Mrs. Virginia McCoubrey, who were both granted the society's Gold Rose, commemorating their leadership, service and character. Good luck to next year's members and, of course, many thanks to Miss Dillon, our long-time advisor and mentor.

Sociedad Honorária Hispanica

The Spanish Honor Society promotes the understanding and appreciation of the Spanish language. Members are chosen because of their high academic performance in Spanish. This year one of the activities included selling Buena Suerte Grams to wish students good luck on their midterms. The society helped to organize the language contest during culture week. Members also volunteered to help in the cafeteria by selling ice cream while practicing their conversational Spanish.

Société Honorable De Français

Bonjour! Comment allez-vous? Très bien, j'espère. The language de Français is more than just a couple of words strung together. It is the foundation for learning an entirely different culture, an entirely different way of life. The French Honor Society was established to strengthen this foundation. This year, the Society had a combined food feast with the Spanish Honor Society presenting various dishes such as Spanish rice, Arroz con pollo, and many French desserts such as Tartes aux Fruits. All of this could not have been done without the help of our "conseillère Fidèle," Mrs. Diane Rice. Thanks for all your help and enthusiasm, Mrs. Rice. On vous souhaite tous du bonheur à l'avenir!

Student Council

The Student council once again enjoyed another fun-filled and successful year. We kicked off the year's festivities with a candy apple sale and a Halloween hallway decorating contest. During the Thanksgiving season we donated turkeys to the Missionaries of Charity. In the late fall there was Homecoming Week with Pajama Day, Clash Day, Hippie Day, and Green Pride Day. During the holidays Student Council, with the help of many generous people, purchased gifts and dinner for a needy family. In late March, everyone was welcome to show off their singing skills at the Hawaiian Karaoke Dance. Westwood High School celebrated the coming of spring with a week of volleyball, a Lip Sync, and the Mr. Westwood High Dance. In honor of Spring Fling Week, the vying colors in the colors war were green, red, and blue.

Thank you, Mrs. Hayes, Mr. Flahive, and members for all your enthusiasm. We had a wonderful year.

Student Advisory Board

The Student Advisory Board had a super-exciting year! Now also serving as the student branch of the Legislative Council, we were able to discuss and act on a number of governmental issues, while still having a blast completing our usual service activities. Highlights of the year include the First Annual WHS Social Awareness Week in which we organized and ran assemblies on the topics of homosexuality, AIDS, Sexual Harassment, and the Women's Movement, hopefully setting a precedent for years to come.

We also successfully participated in "Daffodil Day," sponsored by the American Cancer society, being able not only to present beautiful flowers to our overworked and underpaid faculty, but also give a donation to a cause important to us all. After all our hard work we decided to treat ourselves to a lunga-munga year-end breakfast party at the Courtyard Marriot, and, Mmmmmmm, was it good!

Thanks and congratulation to all!

Faculty Senate

The Faculty Senate consists of members of the faculty elected by their colleagues. The group serves as a conduit for faculty concerns and proposals, often resulting in recommendations to the administration. This year the Faculty Senate, under the direction of co-moderators Mrs. Hollis Perry and Mrs. Nancy Walsh-

Saumsiegle, two community meetings were held. The first meeting had as its agenda Social Awareness Week and the second meeting was concerned about the academic integrity policy, which was under discussion by the school committee for implementation at WHS at the beginning of the academic year 1994.

Peer Educators

Westwood High School's Peer Educator group, supervised by Mr. Linda Hanlon, is made up of sophomores, juniors and seniors who expressed an interest in instructing younger students in the system. After undergoing training themselves, these students created, implemented and presented lessons to the seventh grade on a variety of topics of relevance to students.

Peer Counselors

This was the fourth year a group of peer counselors served fellow students at the high school. Under the leadership of Ms. Carol Armstrong, peer counselors were involved in one-to-one helping their peers with issues ranging from substance abuse to conflicts with friends, teachers or parents. They provided valuable support when students dealt with considerable outside pressures. To become a peer counselor, students devoted much of their time to training sessions and the time during their school day when they had their peer counseling meetings.

Amnesty International

Many students at Westwood High don't even know that Amnesty International exists, and judging by this year's Amnesty activities it is obvious why. Mr. Rex Babiera stepped in to fill the faculty advisor position and led Amnesty to a good year. When Amnesty members weren't writing letters to world powers, they were conducting projects around the school. The most notable of which was the T-shirt sale that held the slogan, "Buy one or become enslaved!" The money raised will go to rejuvenating the Amnesty program for the '94-'95 school year.

Key Club

The Key Club is a volunteer organization. Members volunteer on an individual basis at local places as such as Norwood Hospital, the school Career and Extended Day Care Centers, the Ellis Nursing Home, etc. In addition to individual activities, the club also participates in group related activities. We kicked off the year with our Adopt-a-Bed for a night Halloween raffle. Around Thanksgiving time, we collected many canned goods for the Westwood Food Pantry. At Christmas, we got the entire school involved in decorating spoons for charity. In February and in the spring, we sold carnations for Valentine's Day, collected Pennies for Pine Street, sponsored a clothing toiletries drive for Rosie's Place, and put on a post-prom fashion show at Fox Hill Village. During the course of the year, we sold breakfast foods on in-service days to faculty members. We ended the year with our first Key Club Pot-Luck Dinner. Many thanks to all the dedicated members who made this year an extra special year for the Key Club. Special thanks to Mrs. Ann Matteson, our advisor, for her time and encouragement. We couldn't have done it without her!

Safe Rides

Safe Rides, an important program at Westwood High School and in the community, is an organization dedicated to safety and sanity on the roads. Members make themselves available to drive fellow students who might otherwise present a danger to themselves and others as drivers. During the year they also conduct safety programs and campaigns. The students who serve this organization stand out as leaders and caring individuals. They were always readily available on a Friday or Saturday night if their services were needed.

Chess Club

Resurrected from its four year grave in the recesses of the school by Captains Andy Corbett and Ryan Murphy (with a lot of help from Mr. Dillon), the Chess Team made a strong return to action at WHS. By the end of the year, the team consisted of over 25 members. After two early losses the team rebounded and tore apart the league in its last eight matches. The strong play of the captains repeatedly kept the team in its matches. Near the end of the year, the team had a school-wide tournament. The tournament ended in a three way tie between Andy Corbett, Ryan Murphy, and Britt Greenbaum (the league's individual tournament winner).

Girls' And Boys' State

Through the generosity of the Westwood American Legion and the Westwood American Legion Auxiliary, five members of the Class of 1994 were able to participate in Girls' and Boys' State in June of 1993. Anne Cloherty and Patricia Darcy spent the week at Mount Holyoke in South Hadley, while P.J. McGrail, Todd Collier, and Andy Doré stayed in Waltham at Bentley College. Throughout the sessions, mock governments were established, and each "citizen" of Girls' and Boys' State was assigned to a political party. Although the weather was very warm and there was a lot of make-up work to complete upon returning to school, it was fun to meet new people, listen to interesting speakers, and observe first hand the workings of the government. Thank you again to the Westwood American Legion Posts for their sponsorship.

Academic Decathlon

On an early Saturday morning in mid-November, Westwood's die-hard Acadec Team, consisting of eight incredibly gifted seniors and one junior, made its way to Lunenburg for free orange juice and M & M's. The competition wasn't as exciting as the free food; but after surviving approximately 4280 multiple choice questions and the nerve-racking SUPERQUIZ, the team earned a third place. The Westwood team took that third place all the way to the state finals, held at our very own Westwood High.

Drama Club

Amid the whirlwind that is the P.A.C.E. program, the Drama Club remains—as always—a refreshing return to one's roots. We in the Drama Club like to consider ourselves the Rock, the Foundation upon which theater at WHS is built. Freshmen join, still wet behind the ears, and with the informal hilarity of the annual After-Dinner Theater and the hand eye coordination training of the "Kids on the Block" puppet program, they are molded and shaped into the fine actors and actresses which make our Theater Program great.

The Drama Club of 1993-1994 began with an executive decision to use Woody Allen's newly sullied name to draw big crowds to our After-Dinner Theater, dubbed "Woody's World." An audience of young and old alike delighted in several of Allen's funniest scenes, including "Death Knocks," "God," and "Don't Drink the Water," all masterfully performed by a cast of Drama Club rookies and veterans of all ages. Through the winter and into spring the educational puppets returned to town for another great season of "Kids on the Block", the handicapped puppet program—a brilliant and enlightening success in Westwood's primary schools.

In the hectic world that WHS Theater has become, one and all can delight in the inspirational simplicity of the Drama Club, and the hold it has on all of our hearts. A million-zillion thank-yous to Mrs. Kelsch, our steadfast advisor and director, for her patience, guidance, and her ever-reliable laughter at the funny parts.

Announcers

"Thank you, Mr. Flaherty, and Good Morning!"

Each morning, for one hundred and eighty days, students, faculty and visitors at WHS began their days with the Pledge of Allegiance and this unique wake-up call, served to them with verve and cheer by Garrett, Courtney, Eileen, Sean, Kim or Carolyn. Each morning, news and updates regarding life at Westwood High was conveyed via the lips of this half-dozen . . . the few, the proud, the morning announcers.

Oh, how you hated us those cold rainy mornings when you'd rather be in bed, as our cheerful voices hit the air waves. But how you loved us when we brought a laugh to homeroom and brightened your morning with a joke, a particularly humorous delivery, or an on-the air argument with our partner.

The Morning Announcement Team of 1993-1994 brought you joy and laughter, heartache and sadness, but most of all, we brought you the facts. A great big THANK YOU goes out to our adviser Mrs. Stephanie Kelsch, who valiantly strived to keep us in line with stern notes such as "SIGNATURE!?" and the most-dreaded "PREREAD!" Our job is done. Thank you, that is all. All students on the call list—take the day off!

School Store

The hoard of hungry students pounds down the hall. As the rumble draws ever-closer, a group of four, dedicated to the service of their schoolmates, prepare for The Rush. When the hungry tension in the air seems almost tangible—just at that moment when the stomachs of Westwood High can stand it no longer—the metal window flies up, revealing Eileen, Barbara, Sarah and Ted, the "Dream Team" of Westwood High, alert and ready to serve. Hungry students have reached their mecca . . . the Promised Land . . . the School Store.

In that daily quest for a satisfying after-school snack, the students of WHS sleep better at night knowing the School Store staff is there to quench their thirsts and satisfy their hunger. This year's "Female Regime" with Ted, "Token-Yet-Invaluable-Male," enjoyed a prosperous year of sales in excess of four thousand dollars! Dear readers, each Snickers, each Coca-Cola you purchased from the store made this yearbook you read less expensive and more accessible—is there any greater satisfaction than that?

The 1993-1994 Gurus of Afterschool Snacks give hearty thanks and a Pepsi on-the-house to advisor Mrs. Carol Rosengarten, and likewise with a cream soda to Mr. Charles Flahive, who helped keep that pesky Cokeman in line. We leave with fond memories of both successful and botched key-runings, missed class time, the Best Kid, fear of the Not Earning His Her Keep Board, A. of the Day Awards, Random Week, Chaos Week, the Magic Number, and more. It was a tasty and fun-filled year, may "Service with a Smile" live on!

No Parentheses

No Parentheses is a literary magazine distributed annually to showcase the finest poetry, prose, and artwork from the student body of Westwood High School. No Parentheses has built a tradition of highlighting the creative young minds of numerous novelists, journalists, and artists of the future. The editors and staff members worked tirelessly all year collecting virtually an inundation of manuscripts and artwork for evaluation. Each week the group would meet to discuss their ratings of all submissions and strategies to produce the best possible compilation of those works. Once the submissions were narrowed down to a handful of the best, they were rigorously edited and formatted for publication. With a prose and poetry contest in effect, No Parentheses honored the highest rated poem and short story by giving the winning authors a selected novel for their accomplishments.

The WHS Student Expression

The Westwood High School Expression, the high-school's student newspaper, is a paper written and designed by students. The Expression exercises its freedom of speech set forth under the school's constitution with the inclusion in every issue of an anonymous commentary discussing current issues affecting our school. In addition, the Expression contains articles discussing everything from national issues to sports and concert reviews. In its first two years the Expression has struggled but hopefully with more support and contribution from the entire school and continuing drive and determination, the Expression will find its niche in the Westwood High School community.

Internships

Twelve Westwood High School juniors and seniors were chosen to participate in The Education Cooperative's (TEC) Internship Program.

The internships are designed to provide students with first hand experiences in the working world so they can test out career options, develop their skills in decision making, and increase their ability to work with people of all ages in a professional environment.

Awareness Club

The Awareness Club was created to inform the Westwood High School community of various problems facing today's society, and how we as students can help formulate solutions. The dedicated few of the Awareness Club worked on and completed two main projects this year. We planned a Thanksgiving turkey raffle, using our profits to provide a less fortunate family with a holiday meal. We also supported the National Smoke Out day by placing posters, flyers, and information throughout the school about the damaging effects of smoking. Our last project was the donation of sandwiches to the Pine Street Inn, where they were distributed to the homeless families.

A number of activities have been planned for next year, and in time the Awareness Club will grow and the Westwood High School community will continue being aware that it can make a difference toward society.

Mentors

The Mentors program is an organization under the Westwood Youth Commission that offers volunteer opportunities to Westwood High School students. Rob Stadolnick coordinates and oversees all of the activities. This year, participating juniors and seniors hosted "Teen Centers" at the middle school. Some students presented the Smoking Prevention Program to the kindergarten, second, and sixth grade. The Handicap Awareness Program demonstrated to the fourth grade the difficulties of living with handicaps, while at the same time, teaching tolerance. Fifteen students from the group donated extra time and hard work to the Sexual Abuse Prevention Program. Under the guidance of Barbara Riley, three skits were presented to the second and third grades in an attempt to prevent abuse of children.

Ecolibrium

A relatively new club, Ecolibrium was established three years ago with the purpose of increasing environmental awareness in the WHS community. Its philosophy is one of education and reform. This year, Ecolibrium continued the school recycling program, recycling paper and aluminum cans. The group also initiated a program called "Toilet Talk," whereby club members posted environmental drawings and suggestions in the girls' and boys' bathrooms. Eco's bulletin board and newsletter (the Eco-Liberator) also offered ecological advice, and kept people updated on the actions of the group. In addition, the club painted a rain forest mural in the room of its advisor - Mrs. Staiti. Through activities such as these, Ecolibrium became a more visible influence on the WHS community.

Merit Scholars

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation announced in September, 1993, that ten students from Westwood High School earned honors for their performance on the October 1992 National Merit Qualifying Exam. To earn the status of National Merit Semi-Finalist, a student must earn a qualifying score that places him/her in the top 1/2 percent of the over one million students in the 19,000 secondary schools that participated in this program. In all, approximately 15,000 students nation-wide earned this status. At Westwood High School, we are proud that two students were among this select group:

Eileen Neville and Rebecca Prout. Later in the year Rebecca Prout was designated as Presidential Scholar, the first at WHS in many years.

To earn status of National Merit Commended Student, a student must earn a qualifying score that places him/her in the top 5% of all student participants across the country. In all 35,000 students earned this status. Westwood High School is proud that eight students are among this group: Meg Earls, Sushma Komakula, Nick Ganson, Garrett Domina, Peter Cafarella, Kurt Tondorf, Andy Corbett and Rob Kaufman.

Latin Scholars

They came, they sat, they conquered. All XLIV (that's 44) of Westwood High School's Latin scholars took a Latin exam put out by the National Classics Association; thirty-two walked away with a gold or silver medal or a certificate of excellence. And seventeen of the twenty-four high schoolers in Latin I walked home with medals - three gold and fourteen silver. Congratulations, Romans!

A "Sunshine" Season

GIRL'S FIELD/HOCKEY

Summary of Season: The 1993 season was a growing experience for the Girls' Field Hockey Team. The girls gained quite a reputation in the Tri-Valley League, although their record did not reflect this. Under the guidance of second year coach, Betsy Dugan, the girls proved to be fierce opponents of every team in the league with a perfect combination of speed and finesse. Although the Wolverines finished with a record of 3-8-5, Westwood clearly established itself as a force to be reckoned with; all but two games were lost by a margin of a mere one goal. We wish the team good luck in 1994 and beyond!

Memories: Watch out for ditches, "You'll feel better if you have a cookie", Doogs, Mid-field Recovery Drill...How do you get to Indian Hill Road?, Come on you lazy seniors...

Creative Awards: "Most Enthusiastic" Award: Alison Dick; "Best Vicky's" Award: Meg Earls; "Best Grannies" Award: Liz Sullivan; "Wendy Wipeout" Award: Anne Cloherty.

Bequest to Next Year's Team: The seniors leave to next year's team: times under twenty minutes for the two mile run, an endless supply of balls, a durable pair of running shoes, pinnies for the offense only, the same green away shirts Westwood has had since the 70's, a clue to some players on next year's team, the nice refs, multiple supply of colored corner cards, more than three non-parental fans, a megaphone for Miss Dugan, and a record that really reflects your ability.

Most Memorable Meet: Both times Westwood faced Bellingham this season were extremely memorable games. The first game of the season resulted in a loss by a large margin. However, the second time around proved to Bellingham, this year's league champions, that Westwood was a team that could not be taken lightly. Westwood scored first taking the lead; however Bellingham came back and tied the game at 1-1. The score remained tied until late in the second half when Bellingham scored once again. Bellingham won the game 2-1, but not before Westwood gave them quite a scare.

Also, both times Westwood matched up against Coach Dugan's alma mater, Medfield, resulted in high energy and high intensity games. Although Westwood did not gain a win in either game [though Westwood did walk away with a tie,] both were memorable games because each player gave 100% of herself and both games were truly team efforts.

Standouts

Liz Sullivan - As the team leading goal scorer, Liz was one of the strongest offensive players on the team. The few times Liz was not at practice or at a game she was sorely missed.

Anne Cloherty - This season Anne was the most improved player on the team. Her defensive play was outstanding and helped the team all season long.

Betsy Speros - Although this was Betsy's first year playing field hockey, she was able to take her skills from other sports and apply them to field hockey. Her enthusiasm motivated everyone.

BOYS' SOCCER

SUMMARY OF SEASON: After a grueling pre-season and good showings in scrimmages, the Westwood boys came into the opening game with a confident outlook. The team earned a good mix of players at varied levels of experience (ranging from freshmen to seniors). However, the league was at its usual level of superiority, including four teams in a post-season tournament play. Westwood capped off the season with a 6-10 mark, good enough to earn a fifth place finish behind the four tournament teams. The record is very deceiving considering the fact that Westwood lost three starters to injury and found itself playing with a young and inexperienced lineup for most of the second half of the season.

MEMORIES: Coach's lines: "Buddy Holly," "You guys couldn't cross a street," "Hot supper," and "Year right! Harrington in a 'zone'," Murphy's 50 yard blast, still talking about Jonesy's Millis goal, Josh drilling the no-anglers yet messing point blanks, smiling Raf.

BEQUEATHAL TO NEXT YEAR'S TEAM: Our utopia of a soccer stadium where the fan is the priority and thus placed in the grandstand where his/her view of our plush, green field is nothing short of futuresque.

MOST MEMORABLE GAME: Chris Harrington's game in Medway. We were playing the soon-to-be state champions at their place and Harrington was given the job of containing the best front line in the league. Not only did he contain, he shut them out for the first half. He ended the game with an unhuman twenty-eight save effort.

Oh! What A Season

GIRLS' SOCCER

Summary of Season: We had a rough start to the season losing two captains very early to injury, then losing another later to sickness. Although we did not win many games, we dramatically improved our game when playing teams the second time around. Although our final record did not look very strong, there is great potential and experience which we hope will lead to a winning season in the future. The graduating seniors of 1994 wish next year's team the best of luck! We had a lot of fun and will take with us a lot of great memories.

On A Pace For Success

CROSS COUNTRY

SUMMARY OF SEASON: The team ended up with a 5-2 season, losing to Holliston and Whitinsville Christian. This year's team earned the respect from the rest of the Tri-Valley League after finishing its season in a three way tie for second place. Several runners showed a strong finish at the three meets after the regular season: two meets at Franklin Park and the T.V.L. meet at Hopkington.

MEMORIES: Bobby Horgan passing out, The Place.

CREATIVE AWARDS: Practice Hero Award - Bobby Horgan, Most Likely to Fall While Hurling an Object - Paul O'Conner, Long Distance Award - Joe Paparazzo

BEQUEATHAL TO NEXT YEAR'S TEAM: Two plied scroll and better shorts.

MOST MEMORABLE MEET: The meet against Medfield was the closet meet in years. This thriller was decided by only a few points. Special thanks to Ed White; if he had not run, we would have lost.

Standouts

Captain Andy Doré - "A solid consistent veteran runner who could be depended upon to give his best."

Captain Paul O'Connor - "Paul's enthusiasm was contagious. Every team needs a runner with Paul's spirit."

Brendan Cashman - "Brendan was the team's top runner this year. He battled with the top runners in the league and won his share."

Request to next year's team: We wish next year's team the best of luck for another undefeated season, league champions, and a third South Sectional title.

Most memorable meets:

Ursuline and Bishop Feehan were our toughest dual meets. However, repeating as South Sectional champions proves to be our ultimate accomplishment.

Standouts

Sarah was a great contributor to the team through her second place finish at the state meet in diving, as well as through her leadership as a captain. Sarah's efforts were recognized and she was awarded Team MVP.

- Mr. Riley

Courtney's long distance swimming ability contributed to our undefeated season. She was awarded Unsung Hero.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Summary of Season: An outstanding season at 15-7 with a 2nd place finish to Division 3 champions Medway. THE seniors: Amy O'Brien, Amy Howard, Nicole Levangie . . . The emerging stars: Freshman Sandy Martisaukas, a League All-Star, leading scorer and rebounder this season; Tracy Howard, freshman guard, started most of the season. Injury to Jen MacDonald was a big loss. Underclassmen Lindsay Hatch, Sheila Bennett, Jen Grady, Colleen McDermott, Nicole Neault and especially Jess Delaney had strong contributions and laid the groundwork for a bright future. Outstanding league play and strong non-league games prepared this team toward a strong tourney showing. The returning players are already thinking about a return to Boston Garden, similar to the '92 team.

Making A Splash

BOYS' SWIMMING

Summary of Season: The 1994 Swim Team was a dynamic group of eleven. These eleven guys toughed it out through cold water and miles of workout. Our coach, John Lonergan, was truly a special person. He didn't yell or scream but he still seemed to motivate us in even the toughest workouts. Not only did he motivate us, he molded us into fine young men. We did a lot of growing up in the water and out. We owe a lot to this man we know as "Lunny Goon." Wolverines Capture TVL And Eastern Mass. Crowns

BOYS' HOCKEY

Under the leadership of first-year Head Coach, Dan Griffin, the Wolverines continued their winning tradition. In spite of several early set-backs and the loss of key players, underclassmen stepped in to fill the gaps and provide the necessary depth that a talented team needs to remain competitive.

The early morning practices and the vigorous training paid off once again as the Wolverines skated and fought their way to their eleventh consecutive Tri-Valley League title. In addition to their TVL competition, they selected difficult non-league opponents in Division I, Arlington and Division II, Canton. This strong competition provided the necessary ingredients to win a berth in the Eastern Mass. Tournament. Impressive wins over Medway, Northeast Regional and Somerset set the stage for the Eastern Mass final against Medfield. Medfield upset Westwood earlier in the season, but it was not to happen again, as the Wolverines fought their way to a 6-3 and the Eastern Mass title.

The final game pitted Westwood against Gardner High School, the Central Mass. Champions. After three periods of outstanding hockey, Gardner took the title with an overtime goal mid-way through the sudden-death period.

All-in-all it was another outstanding season—the results of hard work and playing together as a team. The many younger underclassmen look forward to continuing Westwood's great hockey tradition next year.

Win State Title!

GIRLS' ICE HOCKEY

After a number of fun-filled practices, scrimmages, and games, the Girls' Ice Hockey Team completed its second year with quite a remarkable record (6-0-2) and growing support. Defeating the only TWO public school girls' ice hockey teams in the state, Westwood was able to claim the state title. They also gave a number of private schools a run for their money when they defeated Nobles junior varsity, Newton Country Day, and Portsmouth Abby. Coached by Dr. Frank Santopietro and Mr. Phil Speros and assistant-coached by Mr. Paul Connors, Mr. Arthur Lynch, and Dr. Gearon, the team showed tremendous signs of improvement over the last year. Not only could they skate better but they also started to use stick-handling skills and play as a team. Off and on the ice, they always had a good time and definitely started a great addition to Westwood High Sports.

A Unified Team

BASEBALL

Summary of Season: As the 1994 season began, Jack Farrell's Wolverines looked poised once again to contend for the Tri-Valley League championship and a coveted tournament berth. However, hampered by a slow start, the Wolverine Nine found themselves having to win their last six games to reach the tournament. Their hopes were extinguished, but not without a unified fight from a determined and gritty squad.

The Wolverines were led by co-captains Mark Randlett and Jake House, as well as by returning ace Bob DiSabato and pitcher/outfielder Rafael Maione. Randlett proved to be as dependable at the plate as behind it. Maione flirted with the league batting title while DiSabato was overpowering to opposing batters. The Wolverines were overwhelmed with the bat and the outfield play of their junior gem, David Lynch. Throughout the season, frustration was coupled with pain as House played every game, despite a broken wrist. Agony creates character and the bottom line was the Wolverines grew as a club. They were individuals in the beginning and became a team in the end, nearly pulling off a heroic effort to reach the tournament.

Memories: B.P. on one knee, "Shade the hole," NICK, squeeze plays.

Creative Awards: Bob DiSabato - The Out-of-Uniform Award; Mike Mancuso - The Space Cadet Award; Brian Moore - The Name That Is Most Likely To Be Heard Award.

Team Reputation Building

SOFTBALL

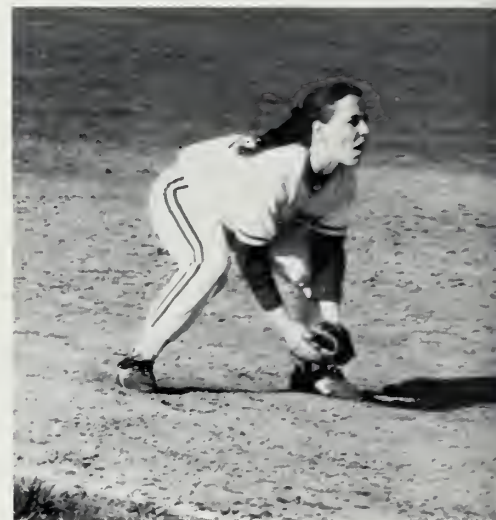

Summary of Season: The girls finished out the season with a record of 6 wins and 10 losses. While this was not enough to earn the team a spot in tournament, Coach Paula Hillberg is doing an excellent job of rebuilding the team's reputation in the Tri-Valley League. The team at times gave such powerhouses as Bellingham and Holliston a run for their money, Coach Hillberg was frequently forced to use her infamous quote "Too many errors led to too many losses" when talking with reporters in post-game interviews. All in all, the Wolverines had a great time this season and returning players are expecting an even better one next year.

Season Summary: The Boys' Tennis Team had another solid year with its climb back into Tri-Valley League contention. Led by senior Andy Corbett, and juniors Victor Servello and Chris Barry, the team played all its opponents tough. Although the final record was a disappointing 5 and 7, all the losses were close matches. On the whole the team is fairly young, and should become even better next year with another year's experience and the hopeful coming of a great season.

Memories: Whalers hat, unofficial captain, the immortal Piz, Coach being yelled off the court by a Holliston player, Snapple.

Most Memorable Event: Coach Dan Damish confronted by a Holliston double's player for arguing line calls during a home match.

Summary of Season: The Girls' Tennis Team once again experienced a willing season. Their victory against Tri-Valley Champ Dover and their trip to the South Sectional semi-finals of the state tournament proved them to be a strong opponent. Although the girls' team did not beat their rival Holliston, they held a competitive edge, both as a team and individually. For the third year in a row, the tennis team placed second in a league that is getting more competitive each season. Their 13-4 record was quite an accomplishment.

1st singles - Liz Sullivan; 2nd singles - Saumya Sharma; 3rd singles - Sarah Lanning; 1st doubles - Joyce Wagner, Ali Lynch; 2nd doubles - Julie Praino, Anne McLaughlin.

Memories: Beating Dover, second in Tri-Valley League, senior power, secret runs to Convenient, state tournament semi-finals.

Most Memorable Event: The

most memorable match was the semi-finals of the South Sectionals (state tournament). Liz Sullivan and Saumya Sharma were victorious at 1st and 2nd singles, but 3rd singles, 1st and 2nd doubles experienced some of the toughest competition of the season. First doubles battled for a point through three long sets, and unfortunately were beaten. While second doubles struggled through a second set tiebreaker after losing the first set, they were let down. This match was more a learning experience for the two freshmen. Anne McLaughlin and Julie Praino persisted but unfortunately did not win. Scituate conquered Westwood in a very close 3-2 match.

Westwood High's feeble reply to the Super Bowl. The annual Powder Puff pigskin competition, pitted the haplessly disorganized Holmeses against the four squads of well-practiced, well-coached and steroid-laden ladies. Overmatched from the start, the fellas did their best to consistently put together short offensive bursts on their half of the damp playing surface. But unfortunately, some dimwit (probably Moose, one of four girls' coaches, along with Duffy, DiSabato and Jowdy) granted whistles to the likes of crooked line judge Mr. Bill Ducheneau and his counterpart, back field judge Mr. James Pender, who repeatedly halted soon-to-be touchdown drives with their ill-advised calls and, perhaps, bribed lips.

Needless to say, the girls found out that winning was easy . . . once any hint of ethics was completely thrown out the window, of course. Up 21-0 and showing no signs of fatigue, they gritted their blackened teeth together and made up their minds that the shutout would stand. But All-American quarterback Dennis Sykes, refusing to be unwound by the different looks he was getting from the constantly shifting girls' defense, threw a strike to newly-signed Jacksonville Jaguar David Siegel deep in his end zone for the boys' only points. Yes, the Holmeses overcame the refs, the elements, and the shoelace handicap . . . only to lose 21-7.

On a beautiful May night, an enthusiastic group of soon-to-be graduates assembled in the spruced-up confines of the cafeteria for the annual class banquet. With seniors filling up the seats at the dozen tables surrounding the one reserved for faculty, the occasion would have been a prime opportunity for a massive (although lop-sided) food fight. However, all guests quickly found that eating the enormous quantities of catered delights served them better than launching them. The evening's agenda included the announcements of the Senior Superlatives as well as a slide show, which seemed to document embarrassing moments in the lives of our seniors (just ask Chris Harrington) and forced us to ask one another if Eileen Neville is related to TV-Kingpin Bob Saget. But the most memorable—and, ironically enough, forgettable—even was the commencement of "Novel Quest," a game first introduced at senior class advisor Carol Rosengarten's own graduation party and one that is, understandable, remarkably popular in France. Needless to say, it was a good time had by all.

The Sheraton Tara Hotel in Braintree again played host to Westwood's Junior-Senior Prom, which, as always, was well-attended and highly successful. Students came by car, by limo and even by trolley to light up the night of dining and dancing. Meatloaf, although not in attendance, was served on the dinner menu. Everyone looked "good enough to eat," as they say, but the tater tots at the catering table looked even better, according to most prom-goers (I've got a million of 'em). Amy Howland was announced as Prom Queen, which allows her to tour the United States during her reign, spreading her message of world peace as she capitalizes on endorsement deals and commercial offers. Congratulations, Amy. But seriously, folks: this year's prom was truly a time to remember.

On June 2, 1994, parents and friends joined the graduates a few days before the big day to recognize the outstanding achievements that certain individuals had accomplished throughout their respective senior year of high school. We, the students, dressed in our gowns of green and white, listened to class Vice-president Andy Corbett, give a stirring speech on personal and collective achievements of the class; William Shakespeare, disguised as classmate Eileen Neville, as she read the class history of our senior year; to Anne Cloherty, as she waxed poetic with the class poem; and to Kurt Tondorf and Meg Earls, who happily dedicated this very book that you hold right now to Mr. Delsignore. We held our collective breath as Mr. D. approached the microphone to accept his award with the fear that he might throw in a good-natured turn-of-the-phrase or two, but instead he delivered a brief, highly emotional farewell speech to our class and ever thanked us for the memories.

After listening to marching music for close to three quarters of an hour, the senior class collectively sprinted to the two yellow buses which would serve as our cohorts to Crane's Beach. Once we arrived, chaos ensued. Men got shirtless. Wiffle ball, volleyball and kadima commenced. And three nice guys showed up in the parking lot in a beat-up old caravan, only to start hurling massive quantities of meat on the grill to give to us. It defined beauty. Meanwhile, the day was a real scorcher, and since it was low tide for the better part of the day, we took up residence near the water's edge to keep cool. As the day drew to a close, and the thought that there were to be more days like this one in the future . . . but only if we could get those three guys in the van to come with us.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

As president of the Class of 1994 I am not only honored to welcome family, friends, teachers and administration, but I am also proud to speak to you on the merits of the Class of 1994.

The Class of 1994 has had a long and memorable career in the Westwood Public School System. We started kindergarten in the fall of 1981 and seemed to terrorize every teacher we met from then on. I can remember all of my teachers complaining at one time or another that they had never had so much trouble with a class before. But it always seemed that by the time June rolled around, we had endeared ourselves to our teachers. They often commented on the varied talents and undying commitment of the class.

It appears that the same is true of our high school careers. We will again be remembered for our diverse talents and strong commitment. As a class we can boast of accomplishments in academics, athletics and the arts. This class has produced eight Merit Scholars and two Merit Finalists. We are also privileged to have among us fourteen students who have completed the rigorous Academic Distinction Program at the high school. But we are not only scholars we are athletes as well. The members of this class have been an integral part of championship hockey, swimming, track, football and tennis teams. Participation in the arts has also grown during our years at Westwood High. We have witnessed the development of a new performing arts program and celebrated as five of our classmates were given Scholastic Globe Art Awards. Hard work and determination has led us down the long road to these successes. We have become patient and persistent through the realization that success does not come easily. And we have committed wholeheartedly to strive to excell.

This commitment however, is overshadowed by the stronger devotion that the members of the class show to each other. During our high school years we have suffered through the loss of teachers, friends and family members. When it seemed that no one could console us, we looked to our parents and teachers for support and there we found the love and reassurance that we needed. We discovered the reassurance that comes with the knowledge that someone believes in you. But it was our classmates that gave us the strength and courage to continue. We banded together to celebrate and to grieve. It was the quiet strength and unfaltering support that we received from each other that enabled us to face our sadness and carry on with the memory of those we had lost. We gave each other the desire to succeed and the willingness to strive for excellence. And we have matured and become stronger because of our hardships. As a class we have taken what our parents and teachers taught us and instilled in each other the strength and will needed to succeed. And succeed we have! Congratulations, Class of 1994! We made it together!

-Joyce Wagner

VALEDICTORIAN'S MESSAGE

Welcome to these commencement exercises. For each of you here today this ceremony holds a unique meaning. For me, this commencement signals the beginning of individuality.

My path through high school was narrowly defined for me. My desire to achieve academically determined much of my role in the Westwood High School community. School rules constrain all high school students. And in Westwood, there is limited intellectual diversity.

Next year, I have chosen to go to Harvard. In choosing my own path in life, I discovered I needed to define myself. For, "If you don't know where you're going, any road will take you there." I needed to understand my purpose in life, in order to decide my next step.

But, how can one define oneself?

This year, I've been trying to figure out how other people view me, but clearly another's opinion has no impact on who I am unless I let it affect me. However, I thought seeing myself from additional viewpoints might aid my journey of self-discovery.

How do people view me as an individual?

Arthur Koestler wrote, "The definition of the individual was: a multitude of one million divided by one million."

At Westwood High, I am student #941700.

People are commonly defined by categories. Can an individual be defined by categories. Can an individual be defined by gender, age group, ethnicity, class?

In Henrik Ibsen's play A Doll's House, the character Helmer says to Nora, "First and foremost, you are a wife and mother." To which Nora responds, "That I don't believe any more. I believe that first and foremost I am an individual, just as much as you are."

I am a woman interested in mathematics. Fortunately for me, that is a hot category in the student market this year. Yet, I too believe that I am an individual, with more complexities than defined by any categorical description.

People are also routinely classified by their environment, their community and the people with whom they associate. Westwood students have been depicted as affluent suburbanites with a penchant for unsupervised keg parties. That's not me. This spring, I spent my vacation volunteering in homeless shelters and soup kitchens in Philadelphia. That's not me either. But, I have chosen to spend my college years in an urban environment because I cannot reconcile my workcamp experiences with a contented suburban community.

Then, can you define someone by what he or she has done? By his or her actions?

Of course, a person's experiences can significantly shape his or her perspective. My experiences can significantly shape his or her perspective. My experiences in homeless shelters have certainly affected my perspective and ideals. Actions lend insight into an individual, but I believe no account of a person's actions, no matter how complete, can define that person. I believe someone could film every single event in my entire life and still not have any real sense of me. For every waking moment, I am THINKING. And it would be utterly impossible to communicate 100% of my ideas to someone else.

So I must conclude that any true definition of self must come from within an individual. As Thoreau wrote, "Public opinion is a weak tyrant compared with our own private determines, or rather indicates, his fate."

So this year, I've been trying to define myself as I've been contemplating what I'm going to do with my life . . . and why. As an individual, I need to have faith in my own personal purpose in life. I need to define who I am and believe in myself.

Thoreau wrote that, "If one advances confidently in direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours."

Indeed, I have met with unexpected success. After a lengthy, thought-provoking application process, I have been selected as the female Presidential Scholar from Massachusetts.

I am proud to be speaking today not because I am a Presidential Scholar nor because I am valedictorian, but because I am my own self, Becky Prout, and my graduation from Westwood High School is one success along my confident advance in the direction of my dreams.

Class of 1994, I bid you to know and judge yourselves; don't let anyone else's opinions control your lives, because no one else really knows who you truly are.

-Rebecca Prout

Graduation

A flock of graduates

On June 5th, we marched in the footsteps of thousands before us to commemorate the successful completion of our high school careers. Armed with our water bazookas, sunblock, and beachballs, we were ready to beat the blazing heat at its own game as we faced our families and friends in the bleachers from our 50 yard perspective. No matter what image you remember from this, the ultimate step in our respective Westwood existences, it should be a satisfying one: a fellow classmate receiving the coveted Walpole Fish & Game Award . . . Fitz's headlong flip of ecstasy on his way to getting his diploma . . . Levangie and Mr. Flaherty engaging in something other than a handshake. As was always the case, the Class of 1994 left its own unique stamp on the proceedings without losing sight of tradition or a sense of importance. After all, this was it, the last time that all of us—students and faculty alike—would assemble at Westwood High School.

here are so many uses for this diploma!

Our Past Times

1994 Class History

FRESHMAN YEAR

We entered Westwood High School as a class in 1990, Vanilla Ice or M.C. Hammer blaring from our headphones—that is, until the administration took our walkmans away. Teenage angst had not yet been invented, but we freshmen fought hard to retain our reckless pride, as seemingly harmless upperclassmen led us outside the building on the way to one of our required classes—READING. We were faceless and immature, a far cry from what we would become, namely recognizable and more immature. No more Teen Centers for us—we had reached an entirely different system with its own entirely different set of rules.

These said rules kept us from really turning the school on its head in our first year, because, as an unwritten law, freshmen did not expect to have a great deal of influence in school activities or sports, and it showed. Our lack of school spirit as a class was well-documented by our unwillingness to be screaming heroes at pep rallies. The senior class president's cry of, "All right, freshman class, let me hear you!" was usually met with a resounding silence. As president of the class, with vice-president Ben Christian, secretary Tina Spinello, and treasurer Denise Cullinane, I know from first-hand experience that we were the first class of WHS to raise a negative amount of money.

All right, so we weren't the best class in terms of fundraising, but we did sponsor a few school events that deserved some merit, if not high marks for originality: the car wash/bake sale, which took place in the rain, gave us a sense of responsibility . . . while giving the owners of the cars a sense that angry high school teens just dried off their vehicle using sandpaper; I'm pretty sure that we had a dance, and if we did, I'm pretty sure that it was a good time; and finally (and perhaps, most importantly), our end-of-the-year barbecue bonanza was a huge sensation with burger and hot-dog lovers alike. I remember that you could walk up to the cook, Mr. Geary, and, very politely so as not to get him enraged, ask him if you could have your burger cooked well, medium-well, medium-rare, or rare. Boy, was that delicious.

When the typical freshman couldn't find either a car wash or a barbecue to attend, he or she had several options during the 1990-1991 school year. One could a) check out a hockey game involving the soon-to-be crowned champions of Westwood High, b) check out the football team, which was probably in the act of beating every team besides Holliston again, or c) check out one of two wars of equal importance—the Persian Gulf War, starring Norman Schwarzkopf, broadcasted on tape delay by CNN, or the second annual, SpringFling—associated Color War, starring a team captain whose nickname is "Snake." As I said, you could take your pick. But once you were labeled a freshman, as in, "Josh Jones, Freshman," you would stay that way until late June.

The Class of 1994 returned to Westwood High School in the fall of 1991, slightly less apprehensive about its 8-3 world for the next nine months than the class had been the year before. In the classrooms, the halls, the playing fields, and various club organizations, everyone was a little more secure and confident about his or her respective niche and role. The high school became a slightly smaller place, as for the first time we were no longer the low men on the totem pole. The Westwood High School Community was no longer a foreign one, but our own. Our freshman initiation was in the past; and although still underclassmen, we kicked off the year on an ambitious note early in the fall. October saw a dual-activity: the Car Wash/Bake Sale intended to raise money for the variety of events in the coming year. Shortly before Christmas vacation, under our sponsorship, the entire school began a drive that lasted for several months. The drive's purpose was to raise money for a bone marrow transplant search for a local leukemia victim, seven-year-old Kevin McNulty. After the winter months passed, and spring was well under way, the Sophomore Class sponsored a highly successful freshman/sophomore semi-formal in mid-May. As the year wound down, late May saw a car wash, which, although small, further added to the growing treasury of the class.

JUNIOR YEAR

In the fall of 1992 we, the Class of '94, returned for our third tour of duty here at Westwood High School. We had finally reached upperclassman status, an exciting and apprehensive time in which we took on increasing responsibility and involvement in the school community.

The newly established school constitution and governing system, which many members of the Class of '94 had helped create, presented our class with a perfect opportunity to involve itself in the school community. Juniors served admirably in every branch of the governance system and were instrumental in ensuring the success of our infant Constitution.

Academically, junior year was notoriously difficult and pressure-filled as it was very influential in determining our future plans. It was a year when students were forced to juggle demanding courses, SAT's, Achievement tests, AP Exams, and the start of the college search. With the help and support of our teachers the Class of '94 responded successfully to the challenge presented by an intimidating academic year.

On the athletic field this class had a strong reputation as a class of gifted athletes and fierce competitors. This reputation w only strengthened by our junior year performance in the Tri-Valley League and beyond. The football team enjoyed an undefeated season and a Superbowl championship. Equally as impressive was the performance of the Girls' Swim Team which posted a 10-0 record. Other impressive performances were turned in by the Boys' Hockey, Girls' and Boys' Basketball, Baseball, Boys' Track and Girls' Tennis Teams, as all made impressive appearances in their respective state tournaments. New to the Westwood athletic scene was the Girls' Hockey Team which enjoyed its first of many seasons to come.

The implementation of the Pace Program our junior year at Westwood High also experienced success especially with its productions of "The Dining Room" and the musical "Mame."

All and all, the Class of '94, under the leadership of the class officers Joyce Wagner, Jen Babcock, Pete Cafarella, and Anne Cloherty, and class advisor Mr. Edward Baker enjoyed a successful junior year at Westwood High School. A comfortable compromise between hard work and fun allowed our class to establish itself in the school community and enjoy ourselves in the process, setting the stage for a great senior year.

Matt Turk

SENIOR YEAR

Freshman, sophomore, and junior years fast becoming a blur, we walk the hallowed halls of Westwood High with a new feeling of importance. Call it wisdom; call it maturity; we like to call it SENIORITY. We fixed our schedules up just right—a few tough courses to impress the college admissions officers with just the right amount of easiness to breeze through. We commandeered our old lockers from cowering freshmen. And with some weak, yet perennial back-to-school complaints, we began our last year of high school. Our teachers beamed with pride; the Class of 1994—their personal favorite, no doubt—came to its own.

Who can forget those first few days... a hands-on experiment group bonding, providing an excellent opportunity to catch up on everyone's summer under the guise of educational games. (Of course, graduation requirements now include the ability to build a ten-foot tower from newspapers and tin foil.)

As we eased through the first months of school, we realized that Senior Year was a lot like every other year, except that a photographer mysteriously appears at any function preceded by the words "Senior Class," such as the Powder Puff football game—where the women of the class showed their true pigskin prowess with a 21-7 win over the boys, despite some shady tactics. (Eighteen guys for one play? Come on, men, lose gracefully!)

From Halloween to Homecoming, life was smooth-sailing and fun until the harsh reality of college applications ran us over like a Mack truck. What was once a vague suggestion from our guidance counselors soon became a menacing threat: "Choose colleges." Some of our classmates were lucky enough to fill out just one application. Other college hero-types went for such obscene numbers as twelve or thirteen.

As the Early Acceptances poured in during November and December, the acceptees basked in the glory of their accomplishments, declared the work days over, and never looked back. The rest of us had some time to kill, so in the true and unique spirit of the Class of 1994, we procrastinated. In spite of being advised by our beloved guidance counselors to finish our applications before vacation, many of us had forms and essays to go alongside our holiday fun, and a cold trip to the post office at 11:45 on New Year's Eve.

Back to school—sigh—but it was 1994 at last! Mid-years fast approaching, we valiantly attempted to keep holiday cheer alive with "Acquainted with the Night," a misplaced holiday semi-formal, organized and executed by the Senior Class. "Danson" and "Holmes" had somehow found their way into our everyday vocabulary; and we began to develop that strange feeling in the pits of our stomachs, commonly known as SENIORITIS. Exams came and went and the Senior Slump officially began! "Homework" became a term used only by underclassmen, teachers and now and then, a parent.

Barraged by blizzard-like conditions this winter, we took our time off graciously; and when no one else was looking, we unabashedly pleaded with the heavens for more snow, as there were no make-up days awaiting us seniors in June. February vacation passed like nothing more than a long weekend, and we were back faster and less rested than we'd have liked. As winter drew to a blustery close, we danced and carwashed and karaoked our way into Spring.

April came and brought joy for most, and temporary heartbreak for some as college decisions rolled in. April vacation saw the luckier members of the class in tropical climates, while the rest sat in Westwood. Nine short, yet fulfilled days later, we were back again, greeted by a later-than-usual Spring Fling Week, with Mr. WHS, the first Lip-sync in three years, and a Senior Class sponsored student/faculty basketball game (special thanks to the faculty for being such gracious losers). All eyes watched the countdown on the cafeteria message board with just five weeks left to go.

It was early May when we shook our heads knowingly as the juniors crammed for the S.A.T.'s. "Ha ha!" we scoffed, knowing we will never again experience that form of torture. But we had our own problems—AP Exams. Three hours of a different kind of hell, testing all we'd ever hope to know about subjects we'd hope never to see again.

In May, we learned the true advantages of being a senior: the senior activities. (And the quiet peace of knowing that when June comes, we'll no longer be in school). The warm breezes of May made school pranksters feel frisky, evidenced by the Port-O-Potty and toilet paper decor which mysteriously appeared one early morning in the courtyard. Presentation of Senior Superlatives by our devoted yearbook editors and the crowd-pleasing "Novel Quest" game were highlights of our Senior Banquet. And it was a delicious culinary success (although they did run out of cheese cake).

We were all but done, except for "Times to Remember," our prom (complete with that first-class piece of cinematography, the pre-prom assembly/slide show). Then classes ended (insert: "Hallelujah Chorus") and we faced the inevitable final exams followed by those pesky "senior obligations"—locker checks, book returns, etc.—all pathetic attempts to keep us here longer. With those small deterrents out of our way, we began Senior Activities Week. We practiced long and hard and learned to march—and we're good, aren't we? We ate steamers and frolicked on the sands and splashed around in water roughly the temperature of freshly melted ice at Crane's Beach; we shared a lovely catered dinner with friends and family tonight and now we sit at Class Night, to applaud the many and varied achievements of our classmates.

And as a class, we all deserve applause.

We can leave Westwood High boasting many achievements—academic, artistic and athletic. We may not have been the most spirited class to walk these halls, we may procrastinate, and we may occasionally complain, but in the end we made each moment here count. In our four years, we've seen sports teams to league, division, sectional and even state championships. We have among us several Boston Scholastic Art Award winners. In our midst roam National Merit and Presidential Scholars. Our arts program has grown before our very eyes, so that we now have plays and musicals and After Dinner Theaters to delight audiences each year. Whole new sports teams and organizations have developed under us; and thrived with our enthusiastic support. We've even revived the long-dead Lip-sync. In short, we've left a legacy not soon to be forgotten.

Now the only thing between us and a diploma is one more of those awful rehearsals to that dreary "Pomp and Circumstance." We've made it this far; we're almost done. This place will become our alma mater, and we'll head out into the world for another fun four-year adventure. So congratulations, Class of 1994. We've earned it.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1994

We the members of the Class of 1994 of Westwood High School, Westwood, Massachusetts, county of Norfolk, USA, Planet Earth, here by declare this last will and testament, thus voiding any previous wills and codicils.

FIRST

We leave to the Class of 1995 all of those invigorating college processes, i.e. applications, interviews, deposits, rejections, as well as a year of "sanity" and "reckless living."

SECOND

We leave to the Class of 1996 the Junior/Senior Prom, as well as the privilege of taking on a new identity and coming that much closer to being one of us . . . An UPPERCLASSMAN.

THIRD

We leave to the Class of 1997 a place at Westwood High School where they belong, their own sophomoric behavior, and the ability not to get caught.

FOURTH

We leave to the Class of 1998 a handbook detailing proper behavior when around any upperclassmen, the ability to calm down, and specific instructions for getting off to a great start at WHS.

I, Rania Awde, leave to Dolly Awde, a recorded message of me telling you to hurry up, for you to play every morning.

I, Svenn Babcock, leave to Svellen Gorman, many friends have come and gone with all the years that passed, but you my friend, are one who will always last.

I, Elsie Burgess, leave to Ms. Hall, a free ticket to my opening night on Broadway.

I, Julie Chiofolo, leave to Jen McDonald, a new knee and enough time to make up for the parties she missed.

I, Anne Cloherty, leave to my parents, finally an empty house, an empty phone, an empty wallet, and peace of mind.

I, Sam Coffey, leave to Mr. Rex Babiera, a lifetime teaching certificate at WHS.

I, Todd Collier, leave to Greg Mattera, all the sessions that he could possibly desire, only at BOB time.

I, Denise Cullinane, leave to Michael Cullinane, a new parking space, my Cranberries CD, a stack of college guides, and a D.D.

I, Theresa Curran, leave to Nora Curran, my Reading and Math requirement and to most of the Class of '94 the best of luck.

I, Tricia Darcy, leave to Steph Connelly, The title of "Mother" and the best of luck "NEXT" year.

I, Kimberlyn Dennis, leave to Latifa my seat on the bus and to the other METCO Students, early mornings, bumpy rides, and unbearable bus drivers.

I, Bob Disabato, leave to Egga, THE tight rump jeans.

I, Garrett Farwell Domina, leave to Wesley Tyler Davis, Mike.

I, Ted Duffy, leave to Steve and Bill, the coveted ability that has been handed down for years. From McFarlane, to Elio, to Me . . . and now you.

I, Meghan Dolan, leave to my brother, Chile, my car and the right to get to school anytime he wishes.

I, Meg Earls, leave to Mike, peace in the mornings, and complete control over the "other room". And to Bill Scales I leave a lock of the cherished Golden Fleece.

I, Fitz, leave to Shawnly my "Go Climb a Rock" shirt, Drew my back pack, and to Jay my stunning good looks.

I, Katie Gallagher, leave to my sister Jenny, our mom, aka History teacher. Good luck Kid!

I, Bob Gelormini, leave to all my underclassmen friends, the pain and traumas I suffered in my High School education.

I, Darce Gorgone, leave to Jamie Carrabis, the secrets of survival, understanding, respect for others, and a pack of cigarettes.

I, Ellen Gorman, leave to Jen Babcock all our good times and to Kerry R. my experience.

I, Elizabeth Gurski, leave to Dolly Awde a pair of pajamas with purple trolls on it.

I, Chris Harrington, leave to my brother a year of hell with Matt.

I, Kevin Harrington, leave to underclassmen the ability to have a good time.

I, Cathy Haverty, leave to J.C., "the stall", to N.C., a membership to B2WA, and a "get out of reading free" card.

I, Benson Ho, leave to the faculty of WHS, my little hamsters (three of them), my socks, my shaving cream and all my best wishes.

I, Ryun Hee Hong, leave to all the teachers I had, all my thanks and gratitude for anything and everything I have received from each teacher.

I, Amy Howard, leave to Jessica Delaney, brainrichdantim.

I, Ellen Houle, leave to Dolly Awde, the famous Pen 15 Club, let the memory go on strong.

I, Jake House, leave to Bill Scales, the beauty of planting a "Buddy Holly" in the back of the net.

I, Jim Hunter, leave to Kevin Moore, my enormous Danish lungs to help you in track, and an ocean of Mountain Dew to wash down all the tacos.

I, Kimberly Jacobson, leave to Carrie Beaumont, a perfect set and a pancake.

I, Sean Kane, leave to Dave Paster, more knowledge on Vlotar, master of the Universe.

I, Rob Kaufman, leave to Westwood High nothing! I'm taking it all with me. He who dies with the most toys wins!

I, Sushma Komakula, leave to Kelly Ristaino, best of luck in all her district auditions, and to Jane Neville and Jess Chiricotti, Thursday night's climax.

I, Jen Ladouceur, leave to Nancy McLaughlin the belinda legend to carry out and two boys under the chair.

I, Erika Larch, leave to my sister, Sarah, and Scottie, a new chauffeur.

to take you wherever you have to go.

I, Vicki Lehmann, leave to the girls' soccer team, the tradition of the "P-Head"

I, Bonnie Levinson, leave to Margo Imbornone, all the Girls Ice Hockey equipment and the super stick.

I, Leanne Little, leave to Maureen Sullivan, the freedom to cruise Fort Lauderdale and hopefully a visit to "The Rat" spring break 1997

I, Beth Lynch, leave to Bill Scales, a stack of subpoenas and to my parents the presence of "Dirger" in the driveway.

I, Amy Magnuson, leave to my little brother Scott, a big, blue 1977 Buick Electra with a broken heater and squeaky brakes.

I, Debbie Martin, leave to Dolly and Lee-Lee, Rania's and my gathering spot in the Math wing and our lockers.

I, P.J. McGrail, leave to Bill VanGelder possession of our "Book of Prospects" and the job of presiding over baton rituals.

I, Barbara H. Miller, leave to my sister, Judith M. Miller, the next four years at WHS to work hard, get a lot of homework, and have fun.

I, Carolyn Miner, leave to Shawn Connolly, the position of Class Treasurer with its early morning meetings, dues collection, constant nagging, and Mrs. Rosengarten—Have Fun!

I, Brian Moore, leave to Kev, my intestinal fortitude, and a bounty of tacos

I, Sean Mullen, leave to my five brothers a shadow to walk in and shoes too big to fill.

I, Ryan the "Murf", leave to Chris Murphy, (unholmes), the Chemiosmotic theory of Noncyclic Photophorylation in the Cruseta of Mitochondria.

I, Donald Murphy, leave to my brother Brian, my locker and all the referrals that come with it.

I, Cara Nasisi, leave to Ryan Menice, jazz recordings and excellent science notes.

I, Eileen C. Neville, leave to Daniel J. Ricciato, Wesley T. Davis, Jessica M. Chiricotti, and Jane E. Neville, a pencil, a dime, a baby deer, and the charmed life, respectively.

I, Kellie Noumi, leave to Mrs. Bishop and the gang in B and E free blocks a tape recorder and a tape with my voice on it.

I, Paul O'Connor, leave to the cross country team the cross-country tooth brush and a personal interview with Michael Mahon.

I, Amy O'Brien, leave to Erin Mitchell, The Truth! It will help you in future life, learn it!!

I, Jennifer Paris, leave to Nora Curran, credits to graduate and a lifetime membership to B2WA.

I, Courtney E. Patterson, leave this school, and I'm not coming back!

I, Irv-Anne Maria Paul, leave to my friends my undying friendship, doublemint gum, best luck in the future and my "attitude."

I, Chris Queally, leave to Bill VanGelder, all my chest hair and the ability to buy.

I, Nathaniel Razza, leave to Greg Mattera and Reid McLaughlin, all future road trips AND THE Hellman's Jar.

I, Bill "Holmes" Riley, leave to Chris Murphy, the game of tickles with Bob and Mandy.

I, Kerrie Robertson, leave to Nora Curran, my attitude, my men troubles and to take charge of the bathroom.

I, Rosanna Rodriguez, leave to my teachers and junior friends, my smiles and my locker to whom it may interest.

I, Peter N. Samiotes, leave to Dave Paster, all my cars, boats, houses, islands, women, and the Vlotar black dot.

I, Jill Santopeitro, leave to Gina Duff, the Keys (even though they are not needed) to the Panel Wagon for a ride to Thursday night orchestra!

I, Andy Shabo, leave to the Class of '95 a bowl full of laughs.

I, Tina Spiniello, leave to Suzy Riley and Katie Galvin, the best of luck in swimming and the 200 IM.

I, Ben S. Stuart, leave to WHS, memories of my craziness echoed with the ringing of laughter . . .

I, André Suescun, leave to Marissa, one final glorios, cranium shattering, top of the world, everlasting, headslap.

I, Liz Sullivan, leave to Mo Sullivan, the keys to the Camry and permission to leave during school hours.

I, Dennis Sykes, leave to Layden & Lynchie, my McHale-type post moves and hopes that you will someday improve enough to give me a good game.

I, Carmen Tilles, leave to Jen Grady, my worn-out, smelly cleats – and one more year with Nub.

I, Kurt Tondorf, leave to Mr. Rex Babiera, the Yobtofskies.

I, Rebecca Tremble, leave to Joshua Tremble, the influence of my name; use it wisely.

I, Matthew Turk, leave to Peter "Pags" Turk, a nickname, $1.65, my LP collection, and three more Winters with "Hump."

I, Kerrie Vogelgesang, leave to my mother and brother a more peaceful house and to Wes Davis the burden of the message board.

I, Joyce Wagner, leave to Cate Wagner, $20 to take a cab.

I, Carol M. Wan, leave to Joycee and "the Juniors" my beat up old 1984 Silver Chevrolet, the worst piece of junk on wheels.

I, Rob White, leave to Gundy, a strong will to win it all with a team capable of doing it.

I, Brooke Wire, leave to Julie Chiofolo, a house in Westwood.

I, Christine York, leave to Mr. Rettman, gossip, and to Maca and Jean, all the Bahamas memories.
